Fitting School

The purpose of this department is to give a thorough preparation for College. The courses of study prepare students to enter this and other leading Colleges of the State. There are some students who do not intend to pursue a College course. To such students we offer a course that will prepare them for the practical affairs of life.

Almost all of the teaching of the Fitting School is done by the Professors of the College, each in his special line.

New students are carefully examined and allowed to take up only those subjects that they can pursue to advantage.

The work of the Fitting School is divided into two sections.

The Preparatory Class covers English Grammar, Higher Arithmetic, Advanced United States History, Spelling, and Beginner's Latin.

The Higher Classes complete the work of the High School. We shall not attempt to teach some of the subjects taught in the Public Schools, such as singing, drawing, manual training, etc. But we shall give very careful attention and thorough instruction in English, Mathematics, History, Latin, and Greek.

Under the direction of his teacher the pupil who does not seek a full course of instruction will be permitted to choose such subjects as he is fitted to undertake.

General Information

Historical Statement.

After a short life in Clinton, Mississippi, and then in Brandon, the same State, The Centenary College was in 1845 established in Jackson, Louisiana. In Jackson it succeeded the State College of Louisiana, the property having been ceded to the Methodist Church. In its new quarters the name of the College was changed from The Centenary College of Mississippi to The Centenary College of Louisiana.

In the fall of 1906 the doors of the College were closed in Jackson to be reopened in Shreveport, September 16, 1908.

Through the generosity of Mr. J. W. Atkins, forty acres of land in Gladstone Addition, a suburb south-east of the city of Shreveport, was presented to the Louisiana Conference. Under the leadership of the Commissioner of Education, Rev. W. E. Boggs, D. D., a handsome and commodious building has been as well as ample dormitory facilities.

Shreveport is a city of nearly 35,000 inhabitants. We are near enough to the city to have all of its advantages and to escape most of its disadvantages. A street car line connects Centenary College with the city, running from the postoffice.

Moral Influences.

The present administration will not forget that Centenary College was established to develop the highest type of Christian manhood. The past history attests how successful this aim has been met. Every effort will be made to hold the College to its best traditions.

The Y. M. C. A. continues to have a large place in our College life.

There are three Methodist Churches in Shreveport and all the other principal Protestant denominations are represented by suitable edifices. Centenary is not sectarian in the sense of requiring all students to attend the Methodist Church. We welcome all to whom our aims make appeal and allow all our pupils the largest liberty of private worship. Students are required to attend divine worship in some church every Sabbath. The pastors of the several churches in Shreveport are friends of our enterprise and make frequent visits to the College, to take part in our daily chapel exercises.

Literary Societies.

The Franklin Institute and the Union Literary Society have had strong and helpful influences on Centenary life. It is hoped that they will renew their lives in the new surroundings and will as hitherto develop many a young student by means of declamatory and debating exercises.

Young Ladies.

For some years young ladies have attended Centenary College. The same privilege will be granted them in Shreveport. It is expected that a number of young ladies from the city will enter Centenary this fall. The College is not prepared to furnish boarding facilities for young ladies. Those who come from a distance will have to engage board in the city. The President will be glad to aid any parent who may wish to seek homes for their daughters among our citizens.

Music.

Provision will be made for the instruction in music of young ladies who may attend Centenary, if the demand justifies the expense of equipment.

Study Hall.

The College Chapel has been fitted up with suitable furniture and will be used as a study hall. Here students are required to prepare their lessons under the eye of a teacher. Under certain conditions students in the higher classes may be permitted to study in their rooms. This permission will be revoked if the student proves himself unworthy of the privilege granted.

Discipline.

The purpose of our school is to develop a fine type of manhood. So long as there seems to be the making of a man in a boy, we are glad to help him. When a boy makes up his mind to disregard our rules we have no longer place for him.

Pledge.

Every student enrolled in Centenary College is required to sign the following pledge:

I hereby pledge my word of honor to obey the following regulations during my connection with Centenary College.

1. I will not use or handle intoxicating liquors.
2. I will not smoke cigarettes.
3. I will not use tobacco in any form in the College buildings.
4. I will not engage in any form of gambling.
5. I will not take part in hazing.

The Dormitory.

The Dormitory and Dining Hall will be under the direct management of the President. He will reside together with other members of the Faculty and their families in the College building. The rooms will all be furnished with steam heat, and heavy furniture. Each room (to accommodate two boys) will contain single beds, springs, mattresses, chairs, table, book shelves, looking glass, wash stand, etc. Each student will be required to furnish his bed clothes, pillow and towels. Intending students should engage rooms at once for the session opening September 15.

Dining Hall.

In the Dining Hall an abundant supply of nourishing food will be supplied. Students and teachers will sit together as members of one family. We believe that in this way alone may we escape the unpleasant features of the average College Boarding House.

Reading Room.

A large and well-lighted room has been fitted up as a reading room. A number of the best papers and magazines are subscribed for. All students have access to these periodicals as well as to upwards of two thousand well-selected volumes. Friends can do us great service by making contributions to our library. During the past session we have been especially indebted to Mrs. Frances Smith, Mrs. J. W. Medlock, and Rev. W. H. Coleman.

Mail.

Mail is delivered to the College campus by an R. F. D. carrier. Mail for our students should be addressed in care of The Centenary College of Louisiana.

Centenary Athletic Association.

All students are invited to join the Athletic Association. This organization is composed of those who are interested in baseball, football, tennis, track team, etc. A small fee is charged for membership, thereby providing for the necessary expenses incident to athletic exercises. Prof. James Hinton is President of the Association.

The Maroon and White.

For several years the students of Centenary have issued a monthly publication having for its name Maroon and White, the colors of the College. Former students are invited to send in their subscriptions. Judge S. C. Fullilove is the Alumni Editor for the session 1909-'10, B. W. Brown is Editor-in-Chief, and E. A. Hoffpauir, Business Manager. The subscription price is 75 cents per school year.

The Alumni Association.

The Alumni of Centenary College have for several years had an organization of their members. At their annual meetings a banquet is served and an address delivered by a member chosen by the Association. The officers now in charge are Judge A. J. Murff, President; Dr. S. C. Barrow, Secretary; Judge S. C. Fullilove, Treasurer. The Alumni have planned to collect the money to erect a dwelling on the campus to be used as the President's Home.

Y. M. C. A.

The religious forces of the College have perfected their organization into a Y. M. C. A. Regular religious exercises are held and a series of protracted services were conducted under their auspices. Bible study classes have been organized and good work done. For next session the officers already elected are, President, D. L. Griffin; Vice-President, D. B. Boddie; Secretary, W. C. Honeycutt; Treasurer, A. D. George.
